Excerpt » Michael Shermer

According to Shermer, the number one reason why people believe weird things is because they're smart - they have a high IQ or they have an exceptionally creative intellect.

Because he can rationalize away evidence, an intelligent person is better able to defend weird ideas to himself.

Another reason people believe in weird things is because of their religious and divine backgrounds. This is particularly the case when individuals experience strange occurrences involving good fortune and whose explanation is difficult.
